JUROR'S STATEMENT • Ted Nuttall, AWS, NWS, TWSA

It was an honor to have been chosen as your juror for the 2011 Miami Watercolor Society exhibition. My intent as I approached this task was to, as much as possible, set my subjective views aside. Consequently I outlined a set of criteria to assist me in making more objective selections. For instance:

What did I perceive to be the artist's consideration for design and composition?

Did the painting seem to be more than just a reproduction of the subject – did it tell a story, express a feeling and state the artist's passion for his or her subject?

Was the piece expertly rendered – did the artist seem to have a command of the medium, was there an apparent continuity to the style or method of applying the pigment?

These, among others, became the prevailing considerations as I viewed the submissions, selected the show, and presented the awards.

I would like to express to all who entered my sincere admiration. I commend you not just for producing the work, but for having the confidence and commitment to present your paintings for jurying. And I offer my hearty congratulations to those who whose work I selected for the show. To those whose paintings received awards, may I say your works proudly represented the finest of the Miami Watercolor Society. I wish you all great success as you continue to hone your skills with watercolor. And thank you for inviting me to jury your work.
